probably bring the matter before the club for discussion. I assumed that it would take the form of a question as to the reasoning power of birds and bessts, and having had great experience with animals and birds, I hasten to give my testimony on this great question, hoping thereby to finally dispose of the matter so far as it relates to some of the animal creation. I have resided, as you are aware, in your midst as man and boy about fifty years. I have been a disciple of Blackstone about twenty years, and have carried the glad tidings of great joy embraced in his doctrines into many of the benighted places in our land, and am now preaching to the land, and am now preaching to the Pikes with great success. You will all bear me witness, that in all my goings out and comings in before you, I have maintained my integrity; devoting my time to the advancement of truth; and have I feel assured that my countries to enect.

Hence, it has never originated new ideas, and therefore, in my opinion, does not possess the power of reasoning from cause to effect, for by this process alone have improvements been made and has the world increased in knowledge in the arts and sciences. This is true so far as my experience and investigations has extended with record. This is true so far as my experience and investigations has extended with regard to the whole feathered tribe, from the gigantic Ostrich that with outspread wings rivals in speed the Arab barb of the Desert, down to the tiny and golden hued humming bird that sips the delicious nectar from the opening rose bud gemmed with the morning dew. They are possessed of only that mysterious and unknown power called instinct.

I am aware that I shall here be met with the question, does not the Gisouse, of the Kankakee Marshes, furnish an exception to the general rule? I answer no; for though I admit that its mode of whistling is an improvement on the mode of whistling of all other birds known to naturalists, still I claim, and challenge the great Cinnamon to show that from the pre-adamite gisoese down to the unfledged nestling now sitting in its downy nest on the mucky shores of Kankakee, that they ever whistled in any Platt Brush, do and hence, I feel assured that my experience and opinions will have much weight with you in your deliberations on the great subject now before you.

With regard to the first creation, I assume that though they build wonderful nests nicely weaving and interlacing the material from which they are made into well molded forms of safety and venience, yet they never improve on the contraction of the first creation, I assume that though they build wonderful nests nicely weaving and interlacing the material from which they are made into well molded forms of safety and venience, yet they never improve on the first creation, I assume that though they build wonderful nests nicely weaving and interlacing the material from which they are made into well molded forms of safety and venience, yet they never improve on the first creation, I assume that though they build wonderful nests nicely weaving and interlacing the material from which they are made into well molded forms of safety and years of the first creation, I assume that though they build wonderful nests nicely weaving and interlacing the material from which they are made into well molded forms of safety and years of the first creation, I assume that though they build wonderful nests nicely weaving and interlacing the material from which they are made into well molded forms of safety and years of the first creation, I assume that though they build wonderful nests nicely weaving and interlacing the material from which they are made into the first creation, I assume that though they build wonderful nests nicely weaving and interlacing the material from which they are made into the first creation, I assume that though they build wonderful nests nicely weaving and interlacing the first creation, I assume that though they build wonderful nests nicely weaving and interlacing the first creation, I assume that though they build wonderful nests nicely as a second sec

But my experience with the animal creation has been different, and early in life it was my fortune to have demonstrated to me beyond the possibility of doubt, that some animals do reason from exase to effect, and that, too, with a precisian and nicety equalled only by a mathe netical demonstration. I will proceed in my experience, from which I drew this conclusion.

When I was a boy I was passionately fond of econ hunting by night, and always kept a good coon dog. On the ceasion to which I refer, I owned a good one by the name of Tige, half hound and half cur, but a fighter, and able to get away with any econ north of Mason and Dixon's line. One night in September, when coons frequent corn fields, I took Tige and my axe and started for a field down by Shaffer's marsh, so called, stealthily approached the field and let Tige in. He soon began to bark and I stealthily approached the field and let Gee W Gurst, Geo Carlton, Tige in. He soon began to bark and I Geo Carlton, hurried to him and found him at the Geo W Gurst, foot of a small maple, about forty feet high, standing in the corn. I could see hiller, ame the animal on a limb about twelve feet Jay C Smith, from the ground, and thought I would J P Flemming climb up and shake him off. A LECTURE TO YOUNG MEN

OHAS, J. O. ELINE & CO.,

This standard article is compounded with the greatest care. Its effects are as wonderful and as satisfactory as ever. It restores gray or faded hair to its youthful color;

It removes all eruptions, itching and dandruff. It gives the head a cooling, soothing sensation of great comfort, and the scalp by its use becomes white and clean.

By its tonic properties it restores the capillary glands to their normal vigor, preventing baldness, and making the hair grow thick and strong. As a dressing, nothing has been found so effectual or desirable.
